Using formative assessment to plan for progress

nassea
The Northern Association of Support Services for Equality and Achievement

Developing professional knowledge from the 4th November session on assessing EAL learners using the NASSEA EAL Assessment Framework and using it to inform teaching and learning, this session explores how you can use formative assessment to plan for progress for EAL learners at different stages of English language development.

In this session we will focus on:

- Linking the EAL Assessment Framework descriptors to the practitioner guidance sections
- Identifying where next steps in language development can fit into curriculum learning
- Planning for teaching next steps with pupils at different stages of EAL development

This course is suitable for teachers and leaders in primary and secondary schools and will use a variety of examples suitable for these age ranges.

Course fee:

£55 per person
